

HISTORICAL AND CULTURAL SITES IN SKOPJE

Fortress of Skopje - Kale

This fortress has the dominant place in the city. It was built of stone blocks from the ruins of the city of Skupi, during the rule of the Romans, Czar Justinijan the First. Today in the space of the fortress is an arranged park, which serves for recreation. The visitors have a wonderful view on the city and the river Vardar from there.

The Stone Bridge

According to certain data the bridge was built in the 6th century, whereas in its present form it was raised upon the old foundation in the time of Sultan Murat the second in the first half of the 15th century. The Stone Bridge is one of the "trade marks" of Skopje. It links the old town on the eastern side of the river with the more modern part of Skopje on the western side.

Daut-Pashin amam

It's an Islamic profane architecture built by the grand vizier Daut Pasha in the 15th century. In the first time it was used for the needs of its harem and later it served as a public bath. Today, the Turkish bath is turned into a National Art Gallery. It is located in the vicinity of the Old Bazaar.
